DEMOCRAT VOTES WITH REPUBLICAN

And Prevents Passage of Party Measure Over Veto—Dycus Outside Fold

Frankfort, Ky., Mar. 14—When Senator Walter G. Dycus, a democrat from Marshall county, rose at his seat Monday, during the voting on the attempt to override Gov. Morrow's veto of the Watkins blind and illiterate voter bill, and began an explanation, few of the persons present knew that he was going to vote with the republicans against the effort, but he did. As a consequence, the ballot stood 19 to 18, falling one short of the constitutional majority required to upset an executive disapproval. While Senator W. A. Perry, democratic floor leader, was able to rescue the bill, and hold it up for possible future passage, it is certainly dead unless Senator Dycus should be persuaded to change his mind.

Two years ago, when the Senate was divided as it now is, 20 democrats and 18 republicans, Senator Burton, of Grant county, began voting with the republicans, and as a consequence they obtained control of the legislature. The loss of Senator Dycus, with the division the same, not only defeats the illiterate voter measure, but it also endangers the much more essential statewide registration bill, the veto of which by the governor is expected Tuesday.

The defection of Senator Dycus also greatly complicates the situation with respect to the Moss-Meyers $500,000 road bond issue, action on which was looked for on Tuesday, due to the decision of the democrats, in party caucus, to bring the bill up for consideration. Passage of this bill had been expected, but the injection into the Senate of a party break means that anything is now possible, and it may mean that the democrats will decide to put this measure on the shelf, in retaliation for the apparent defeat of the Watkins bill.

Senator Dycus who voted with the 17 republicans to sustain the governor's veto, reversed his attitude on the illiterate voters' bill, as, when it first came to the Senate, he supported it. The bill passed over the governor's veto in the House 64 to 28, and, with all 20 democrats present, its victory in the Senate was anticipated, but the upset narrated above stopped its career toward becoming a statute.

Senator Dycus did not say what he would do with reference to the registration bill, though he voted for that, too, when it was brought up for passage with the emblem bill, the first of the three Senate about ten days ago.

When the Louisville no-emergency measures, of which Monday's was the second, was up for action, with respect to Governor Morrow's veto, several days ago Senator Dycus was out of the room and it was only after a frantic search that he was found apparently ill, in one of the committee rooms, and he was supported into the Senate chamber by two of his colleagues. At that time he voted with the other democrats to carry the bill over the veto.

Only two House bills were passed by the Senate Monday, after one Senate bill had been passed and rushed to the House in order to get through in the remaining three days, they being the two budget measures. The House passed three bills, the Moss repeal of the anti-syndicalism bill, the amendment of the state-wide prohibition law, and the Daugherty substitute for the Whiteaker gas conservation bill, the last named being the center of a hard parliamentary battle.

The budget bill was amended by the Senate, on motion of Senators Robert Simmons and J. W. Stoll, to provide $100,000 more for the state board of charities, and corrections, and also, at the instance of the former Senator, store the $20,000 lopped off the board of health appropriation in the House.

An effort by Senator Frank White, assisted by Senator John A. Lee, to reduce the $100,000 item granted to the University of Kentucky to $20,000, was defeated on a roll call, 30 to 3, Senator Dycus also voting with them. Senator White also tried to have the $45,000 item to apply on the old debt of the university stripped out of the bill, but was overwhelmingly defeated, and the university allowance stands as it was amended by Mr. Hamilton in the House.

The anti-syndicalism changes, advocated by union labor, swept through the House, as they had in the Senate, while the prohibition act also withstood every attempt at amendment. The gas bill also was passed, without amendment, the final vote being 50 to 40. Thus the Senate disposed of two of the 120 House bills before it, while the House got through three of the 90 Senate bills it has to consider.

It was only by one vote that the Senate refused to grant the Simmons amendment, seconded by Senator Stoll, to increase the board of charities and corrections allowance from $1,250,000 to $1,450,000 in the 1923 budget bill. Judge Alex P. Humphrey had written a letter which Senator Stoll read, calling attention of the Senate the fact that the budget allowance reduces the board by almost $500,000 from the figures of the present fiscal year, and that only by the exercise of the most grinding economy will it be possible to conduct the institution at all.

When Senator Simmons then asked for an amendment to make an increase of $100,000, Senator Daugherty tried to prevent its consideration on the ground that it was out of order, but failed to gain his point. Senator Daugherty led the fight against the appropriation, and moved to put the clincher against the $200,000 item.

When the vote was taken on the $100,000 increase Senators Garner and Demunbrun, who had opposed the $200,000 item, changed and voted for it and Senator Tabor, who was absent when the first vote was taken, also supported it, the amendment prevailing, 20 to 16.

Only five Senators, Daugherty, Garner, Green, Lee and Perry, opposed the restoration to the board of health of $20,000 cut from its appropriation by the House, and which originally had been granted by the budget commission. Senators Simmons, Baker, Kinne, Brock and Moss made speeches in favor of this increase. Senator Brock especially paid tribute to the nurses, who, he said are riding horseback over mountain counties to save the eyes of the babies, threatened by disease, and said their instructions to mothers and to mothers-to-be are invaluable.

The 1924 budget was amended to grant $100,000 increase to the board of charities and corrections the item of $70,000 for the board of health not having been disturbed in this bill by the House of Representatives.

Representatives Ira Smith, John Brown, Raymond. Burton and James Park took a large part in attempting to amend the gas conservation bill so as to provide that the gas companies granted the control over all territory within a radius of ten miles of their pipe lines, in which the manufacture of carbon black is interdicted, be compelled to purchase proportionately from all gas producers their share of gas, but this amendment was defeated.

Another amendment to compel the gas companies to provide an outlet for all gas produced in this territory, otherwise to withdraw restrictions six months after such refusal, from provision against use of the gas to make carbon black, was beaten by a standing vote, 41 to 37. The bill finally passed and now goes to Governor Morrow for executive consideration.

At night at the Frankfort hotel, Speaker James H. Thompson entertained democratic members of the House and other invited guests at dinner.

At night every possible pressure was brought to bear on Senator Dycus by his party colleagues in an effort to bring him back into line. A friend of Senator Dycus said last night that he believes the latter will not oppose carrying of the general registration law over Gov. Morrow's veto, but there is no question that the majority of the observers here are skeptical about the chances of this measure being sustained. Its veto is expected Tuesday in the House, which, however, can defer action if it so desires.

The two photographs reproduced here were enlarged from news reel films which have been screened everywhere. They convey a clearer impression than can be produced in any other way of the extraordinary hazards to life and limb which film news reporters have grown to accept as a matter of course—"all in the day's work"—as they call it. In this instance, L. C. Hutt, Pathe news film reporter, serves as the illustration. In one picture you see Hutt standing on the nose of his bi-plane with the murderous propeller whirling close behind him while he grinds away at his camera placed on the upper plane. A thousand feet below is the city of San Francisco. He is engaged in the filming of a performance of a "dare-devil" from an airplane speeding along directly behind his own. In the other picture, Mr. Hutt is seen filming an eruption of Mt. Lassen, this country's only active volcano. His camera is planted on the edge of one of the numerous craters at an altitude of 9,500 feet above the Pacific. He wears a gas mask because of the suffocating sulphurous fumes rising from the crater. Without the mask his venture would have turned out a failure. This picture was taken by Mr. Hutt's assistant, who thus proved that he also had a "nose for news."

BURGESS APPOINTED DEPUTY MARSHAL

Well Known and Leading Republican of Madison Is Honored With Nice Plume

William Burgess, former jailer of Madison county, returned from Frankfort Monday night, where he had been appointed as Deputy U. S. Marshal for the Eastern district by U. S. Marshal Roy Williams at the opening of federal court. He qualified at once and was immediately put to work. There happened to be no other federal officers present at the time, so Mr. Burgess was sent over to Lawrenceburg quickly to take charge of a couple of the men charged with robbing the Vanarsdell distillery in Mercer county the other night. He got his men and took them before federal court at once. Later he was released from attendance at Frankfort and came home here, where he received the congratulations of his many friends who are confident that he will make good in his new work for which he is well qualified. Mr. Burgess has always been a loyal and hard-working member of the republican party and his friends say no one better deserves such an honor than he.

MACK MONTGOMERY IS HELD OVER

Claims Knew Nothing Of Still But Fred Ashcraft Told Him He Put It In House

Notwithstanding the fact that Mack Montgomery claimed he knew nothing of the crude moonshine still found upstairs in his home by officers Saturday, and swore that Fred Ashcraft told him he had found it and placed it there while Montgomery was away from home, Judge John D. Goodloe held Montgomery to await the action of the grand jury at the May term of circuit court at Montgomery's examining trial Tuesday morning.

Montgomery declared that he left home, leaving the doors unlocked, and went to the home of his father-in-law, James Warner, across the Kentucky river in Clark county. There was a Holy Roller meeting going on and he and his family were attending it. After Montgomery had been arrested Saturday he said that Fred Ashcraft came to him Sunday and told him he had found the "things" and had taken them to Montgomery's house. John Horn and Mr. Warner who said they were with Montgomery at the time, corroborated him, and also testified to Montgomery's good reputation. Others who testified to his good reputation were James Shearer, who declared he believed that Montgomery "is as innocent as I am," B. Current, who said Montgomery worked for him in building railroad bridges for nine or ten years and was one of the best men he ever saw; John Johnson, formerly of Ford, and now living here, and Tuck Bush. Fred Ashcraft was not present to testify.

Deputy Sheriff Franklin Deatherage, who found the still, said that it was fresh looking as if it had recently been used. Deputy Sheriff R. O. Moberly, who was with him, said that Mr. Deatherage went up stairs after the still, but he could smell it when he opened the front door and entered the house. Montgomery gave bond with Messrs. Current and Warner as sureties.

STILL RUNNING IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

T. J. Roberson Captures Worm and Brings It In But Operators Ail Escape

Deputy Sheriff T. J. Roberson of Berea, brought to the sheriff's office a worm which he captured at a moonshine still near Bearwallow, about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. Three men who were operating the still when he came upon them fled, when they saw him coming. He met three others apparently coming from the still shortly before he got to the scene, but was unable to identify any of them. There was a water bucket full of liquor just run and a jar full. One jar was under the mouth of the worm. The officer in fact caught the still in full operation. He brought in a small quantity of the whisky to town as evidence, but said he kicked the bucket full over on the ground. One man was about 30 feet in front of the still which was up a hollow. This fellow seemed to be an outpost guard. The minute he saw Mr. Roberson coming he ran and the others with him. At another place Mr. Roberson found several barrels of fresh mash. It seemed to him that the still had been moved from this point, as probably being too exposed. The worm he brought in was a fine copper affair. He tore down the still but left the kettle on the scene.

RICHMOND NOW ON ROTARY MAP

Lexington Sends Jolly Bunch of Rotarians Over Who Help Install Club Here

Richmond's Rotary Club was formally installed with elaborate and impressive ceremonies by a committee from the Lexington Club shortly after noon Tuesday. Special Representative of the District President, Frank L. Carter, conducted the installation of the new club, which thus becomes a member of the great organization of which there are over 1,000 clubs in the world with over 80,000 members.

A regrettable feature was the enforced absence of the Richmond Club's new President Homer W. Carpenter, who was kept away by illness. In his absence Vice President R. E. Turley presided.

The occasion was made a delightful one in every way. The spirit and slogan of Rotary Clubs is Service, but good fellowship among the members is one of the fundamentals and the Lexington "boys" brought an abundance with them and instilled the get-together spirit, with absence of reserve among a lot of staid business men here that made everybody feel good and kept things moving all the time. All present pronounced it one of the most enjoyable gatherings ever known here.

The Richmond Club's formal organization was effected with election of permanent officers as follows:

President—Homer W. Carpenter.
Vice President—R. E. Turley.
Secretary—S. M. Sauley.
Treasurer—E. C. Stockton.
Sergeant-at-Arms—T. K. Hamilton.

In addition to the club's officers who are ex officio members of the Board of Directors, three directors were chosen as follows: James W. Hamilton, Allen H. Zaring, and J. Hale Dean.

The club adopted its constitution and by-laws as required for admission into formal organization, fixing the regular meetings each week at 6:30 on Thursday evenings at the Glynndon Hotel. Attendance at these luncheon meetings is one of the compulsory conditions to membership. Another attractive feature of Rotary is that each member is compelled both during meetings and at all times to address all other members by his first name, thus eliminating formality and promoting a fraternal spirit of good fellowship that can hardly be secured in any other way.

After election of the officers, Mr. Carter gave an instructive and appreciative discussion of the principles of Rotary, in explaining the duties of the officers and of the club members generally.

Then Dr. Benjamin J. Bush delivered an eloquent and effective address on Rotary, stressing the cardinal principles of Service, and what it has meant in the world, and what it means as exemplified by such a great and powerful organization as Rotary has grown to be. His remarks were greatly enjoyed and appreciated. President C. T. Roszell, of the Lexington Club, in a short address amplified the spirit of Rotary. He asserted that membership in it is the best investment the new Rotarians had ever made and declared that they would find their greatest dividends in the satisfaction of duties well done.

A rising vote of thanks and appreciation of the coming of the Lexingtonians to Richmond with their spirit of good fellowship and service was given by the Richmond Club upon motion of S. M. Sauley.

Rotary Club organization is limited to membership accorded to one representative from each business classification. Richmond Club begins with 18 members, three of whom, Dr. Carpenter, President T. J. Cones, and Lewis Neale were prevented from being present. The other charter members are R. E. Turley, J. Hale Dean, "J. Turley, S. M. Sauley, T. K. Hamilton, E. C. Stockton, J. W. Hamilton, D. J. Williams, J. S. Sewell, E. W. Powell, D. W. Kennedy, J. Z. Rice, W. W. Broadbent, J. Howard Payne and Allen Zaring.

(By Associated Press)

Lexington, Ky., Mar. 14.—Kentucky dairy cows, including 12 Holsteins and 10 Jerseys owned by 12 different dairymen in seven different counties of the state won a place for themselves on the February Honor Roll by producing more than 3 pounds of butterfat during the two days that they were tested, according to an announcement made today by J. J. Hooper, head of the College of Agriculture, dairy department.

During the month a total of 140 cows, including 117 Jerseys and 23 Holsteins comprising 32 different herds, were tested under the supervision of the college dairy department, according to the announcement.

Hurstbourne Elizabeth, a five-year old Jersey owned by Hurstbourne Farms, St. Matthews, headed the February list with a record of 4.51 pounds of butterfat produced during the two day test. BOONE'S BIRTHPLACE IS FALLING TO RUINS

(By Associated Press)

Reading, Pa., Mar. 14.—Deteriorated by the elements it has withstood for 192 years the stone house in the foothills of Exeter township, Berke county, where Daniel Boone, the Kentucky pioneer, was born, is slowly falling to ruin from lack of care. Until two years ago the house had been tenanted and the necessary repairs made, but now it is deserted, the cellar full of water, windows broken, doors decaying and the 160 acres of the estate are uncared for.

The farm is situated about one and a half miles from Stonersville. The lane leading to the premises is marked by a large white rock placed by the Historical Society of Berke county, on which is the inscription: "One quarter mile to the birthplace of Daniel Boone, Oct. 22, 1733."

In this connection it may be said that some authorities give the date of his birth as 1734 and 1735, and his birthplace Berke county, Pennsylvania.

According to history Boone staid here until he was 17 years of age, when he went to Kentucky. Tradition has it that it was nearly that he killed his first bear when he was 14 years old, and he was so proud of his achievement that he carved an inscription on a tree with his hunting knife, reading "D. Boone killed a bear near here."

The house has four rooms on the first floor, six on the second and an attic. The original Boone dwelling had two rooms on the first floor and three on the second, but an addition similar to the original in every respect was made after the family migrated.

One of the original rooms contains a large fireplace made of stones and still in good condition. Here it was on the mantel piece, according to tradition, that young Boone carved a notch indicating his height when he went to Kentucky and upon his return in middle age was interested to see how much he had grown. However, the historic notch cannot be discovered on the mantel piece.

The shutters and doors of the dwelling are hung on wrought iron hinges and still are in good condition, but many of the windows are broken, permitting rain and snow to enter and cause the floor to decay.

Efforts have been made to have the state purchase the house where the pioneer was born and still more recently, there have been reports that the Historical Society of Clark county, Ky., has interested itself in the purchase of the farm for historical purposes. The farm is valued at $15,000 according to late estimates.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

GIRL NOW WELL AND STRONG

Daughter Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as Mother Advised

Wauseon, Ohio.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet at those times. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing girls so much good so she began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since then able to do any work she wants to do—although she is still careful not to do heavy work—and so well and strong. We recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with ailing daughters, and I give you permission to publish this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. A. M. BURKHOLDER, Route No. 2, Box 1, Wauseon, Ohio.

Something out of balance will affect the finest clock, causing it to gain or lose. The proper adjustment made, all is well. So it is with women. Some trouble may upset you completely.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct the cause of the trouble and disagreeable symptoms will disappear as they did in the case of Mrs. Burkholder's daughter.

MOTHERS—it is worthy of your confidence.

Courtenay Foote Supports

Norma Talmadge

Otis Harlan, veteran comedian, is responsible for most of the fun in which "Two Kinds of Women," starring Pauline Frederick at local theatres Wednesday, abounds. Harlan has been famous as a stage comedian for years. Several years ago he was a bona fide Broadway star and was featured in the production of "Little Boy Blue." He has also appeared in support of many of the greatest stars. He has had a varied work in motion pictures. His work in support of Doris May in "The Foolish Age" brought him to the forefront recently, and he bids fair to remain.

Broadway Star With

Pauline Frederick

Courtenay Foote, who will be remembered by many New York play-goers as the fascinating Irish philanderer in "Up Stairs and Down," a Broadway success of two seasons ago, is now transformed into the tensely emotional "Estaban" of "The Passion Flower," Norma Talmadge's latest starring vehicle, which will be shown at the Opera House tonight. The scenario is taken from the play of the same name which enjoyed quite a long run in New York last winter.

PLAN TO CLOSE GAP IN DIXIE HIGHWAY

Arrangements were made at Frankfort Monday by the state highway commission to complete 14 miles of road in Whitley county this summer which will put the Dixie highway route from Corbin to Jellico in first-class condition. Whitley county will put up $19,000 for the construction and will apply enough of the state aid due the county to complete the work.

The road from Winchester through Powell, Wolfe, Breathitt, Perry and Letcher counties to the Virginia line is to be a federal aid project, according to an agreement reached Monday by Mac Galtbreath, senior United States engineer in charge of the Kentucky work, and representatives from the counties through which the road will pass. The state highway department will make an estimate of the cost this spring.

DR. GIBSON'S HOME BURNS AT WACO

The residence of Dr. B. R. Gibson, near Waco, recently purchased of Dr. Vardy Taylor, was entirely destroyed by fire Monday night, the flames being discovered too late to save it. Mrs. Gibson and two small children were forced to jump from a second story porch in their night clothes, where neighbors rescued them and gave shelter for the night. Dr. Gibson and the elder daughter had left on the afternoon train for Louisville and will not return for several days. The origin of the fire is unknown, but was probably caused by a defective flue. The building was a two-story frame, worth about $6,000 with small insurance. All the furnishings, clothing, etc. were lost. Dr. Gibson recently located at Waco, coming from Pike county, and friends sincerely regret his loss.

County property as well as city property can be kept always protected by a safe policy written by Burnam's Insurance Agency.

Why Colds Are Dangerous

You are often told to "beware of a cold," but why? We will tell you: Every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases. People who contract pneumonia first take cold. The longer cold hangs on, the greater the danger, especially from the germ diseases, as a cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs of consumption, diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough. The quicker you get rid of your cold the less the danger of contracting one of these diseases. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a great reputation as a cure for colds and can be depended upon. It is pleasant to take.
